

Short Biography Dr. Vanessa Mak

Vanessa Mak is an Associate Professor of Private Law, and a tenure tracker in the Faculty of Law, at Tilburg University. Prior to her appointment in Tilburg, she has held positions as a postdoctoral researcher at the Max Planck Institute for Comparative and International Private Law in Hamburg, and as a Lecturer in Law at Oriel College, Oxford. Vanessa has law degrees from Erasmus University Rotterdam (LL.M 2001, cum laude) and from the University of Oxford (M.Jur 2002, with distinction; M.Phil 2003; D.Phil 2006), where she obtained her D.Phil on Performance-Oriented Remedies in European Sale of Goods Law (published with Hart Publishing, 2009).

Vanessa's research focuses on the interplay between private law and regulation in the EU, with a specialisation in European consumer law. Her current research focuses on the role of private law in the economic regulation of the European (consumer) market, with particular focus on consumer credit and investment law. Vanessa is an editor of the Dutch Tijdschrift voor Consumentenrecht (TvC) and of the international Zeitschrift für Europäisches Unternehmens- und Verbraucherrecht (euvr).
