

Transition Regulation LLB International and European Law for students having started before 1-9-2018

Introduction

As a result of the restructuring of our bachelor's degree programmes, the first year of the LLB programme International and European Law will be offered in the new format as per 1 September 2019. As per 1 September 2020 the second and third year will also be transformed into the new structure. As it is financially impossible for the Faculty to have a full year of old style courses taught alongside the new courses, the Faculty Board has chosen to have the old style students participate in the new courses as much as possible.

Old style LLB programme

The old style of the LLB programme International and European Law will be slowly dismantled as from the academic year 2020-2021. Old style LLB students who are subject to the Binding Study Advice regime are supposed to have passed their full first year course load on the 31st of August 2020. For students that will receive or have received an exemption of the Binding Study Advice for the upcoming academic year, a transition regulation will be set should they not have completed their full first year course load on the 31st of August 2020. All first year courses old style can be passed until the 1st of September 2020.

Applicability

This transition regulation is applicable to all LLB students who have started the LLB programme prior to 1-9-2018. For students who have started in the academic year 2018-2019 there is a separate Transition Regulation.

Scheduling

For students who have to repeat courses, the new set-up of the LLB programme will lead to a different scheduling in the year of some courses as from 1 September 2020. The requirements in the Teaching and Examination Regulations will mainly remain the same. The division of the courses in both blocks and semesters and possible changed requirements can be found in the transition table and the transition scheduling which are, together with this introduction, the complete Transition Regulation for the LLB programme International and European Law for students starting before 1-9-2018.

When drafting this transition regulation, the Faculty has tried to offer the courses as much as possible in the semesters they were offered in in previous academic years. Repeaters can in all cases repeat a course they have not obtained yet within one academic year.

The transition table for the old style LLB students indicates which new courses will replace the old style courses, the size of the new courses and in which block they will be taught. This table also holds the special arrangements that have been made, if they have been made.

The scheduling of second and third year courses old style that will cease to exist has, only for the academic year 2020-2021, been adjusted to the scheduling of the old style LLB programme. As from the academic year 2021-2022 the regular scheduling for the new LLB programme will be applicable to old style students.

Students have to have successfully passed all compulsory courses (either the old style course or the new course that replaces the old style course as from 1 September 2020) and have obtained a minimum of 180 ECTS in order to graduate from the old style LLB programme International and European Law.
